IN AN EMERGENCY DIAL 111

BUTTERFLIED CHICKEN WITH SOY AND HONEY DRESSING

Cooking chicken butterflied ensures that the legs cook at the same rate as the breast, which can be tricky with a whole bird.

Ingredients

2kg organic or free-range chicken

½ bunch coriander

½ bunch mint

4 spring onions, with white and green parts

6 tbsp extra virgin olive oil (half for rubbing chicken and tossing herbs, the remainder for the dressing)

sea salt

freshly ground pepper

2 tbsp light soy

2 tbsp good, local honey

juice of 1 lemon

Method

1. Wash the herbs and break them into large sprigs with some stem attached. Cut the spring onions in half.

2. Take the chicken out of the refrigerator 2 hours before cooking and bring to room temperature. Prepare the chicken by turning it breast side down and cutting down the backbone with kitchen shears. Turn it over and push down gently on the breastplate. It should start to flatten out. Push it down further and you should have a butterflied bird in front of you. Remove the wishbone.

3. Preheat the oven to 220C (240C conventional).

4. Rub the chicken skin with olive oil and season with salt and pepper. Place in a roasting tin and cook for 45 minutes.

5. When the chicken is at the 35-minute mark, toss the herbs in some olive oil and put them in the pan, over the top of the chicken. Ten minutes later, remove the chicken from the oven. Remove the herbs and set to one side. Cover the chicken with foil and rest for 15 minutes.

6. Roughly chop the herbs and place in a bowl. Add the soy, honey, lemon juice and remaining olive oil, and mix well.

7. Place the chicken on a chopping board, cut down the middle, then remove the legs. Cut the legs into thighs and drumsticks, and cut each breast into two. Put the chicken pieces on plates and spoon over the herb dressing. Add a healthy grind of pepper and serve.

CHILLI LAMB SKEWERS WITH MARGARITA PICKLED PINEAPPLE

Tangy, savoury skewers of lamb perfect for serving with a light summery salad.

Ingredients

800g boneless lamb neck, cut into 2cm pieces

2 tbsp chipotle chillies in adobo, finely chopped

¼ cup honey

¼ cup lime juice

juice and zest of 1 orange

2 tbsp tequila

1 tsp salt flakes

1 tsp finely grated lime zest

1 long green chilli, thinly sliced

1 small pineapple (about 400g), peeled and thinly sliced into rounds chargrilled tortillas, to serve lime wedges, to serve

Method

1. Thread the lamb into 12 metal skewers. Mix the chipotle chillies with 1 tablespoon each of lime juice and honey, and brush over the lamb. Set aside to marinate for 15 minutes.

2. Meanwhile, combine the remaining lime juice, honey, orange juice and zest, tequila and salt. Add the pineapple and chilli and toss to combine. Refrigerate until ready to use.

3. Preheat a chargrill pan or barbecue over medium-high heat. Add the skewers and cook, turning regularly, for 4–6 minutes or until charred and cooked through. Set aside, loosely covered, to rest for 5 minutes.

4. Serve the skewers with pickled pineapple, tortillas and lime wedges.

Tip Serve these skewers with a simple green salad.

Businesses Report Good Trading Over Christmas and New Year Period

The Pinkie has conducted an informal (and unscientific) survey of local businesses on their trading over the Christmas and New Year period.

Considering that the same time last year was in the halcyon glow of post Covid (Round One) concentration of local tourism, this year appears to have gone very well, considering the similar lack of international tourists.

Annie Truman at the Four Square told us that the first week saw them slightly down on the previous year, but the second week balanced things out with an increase on the 20/21 season.

Much the same comments came from the Hanmer Springs Thermal Pools and Spa with the first week down on the previous year, but with much improved numbers in the second week.

As Marketing Manager, Shane Adcock observed, "Last year we had such impressive record numbers, so it was always going to be difficult to match that."

That numbers were better in the second week is very good considering the extreme hot weather.

Pubs report that their figures were much the same as the year before and cafes that we have checked have generally reported excellent trading albeit a fraction down.

NEW YEAR'S EVE IN HANMER SPRINGS

Hanmer Springs SH7A replanting options

The Hanmer Springs Community Board recently approved the construction of a new concrete footpath alongside SH7 between the Argelins Road intersection and Ensors Drive. The construction of this has meant the removal of the trees along that section of road, which you may have already seen.

When the trees were in place, they were a key part of beautifying the entrance to the village.

Now that these have been removed, the Community Board is seeking views on what could be planted there to run alongside the footpath.

What would you like to see there? There are two options up for suggestion, or you may think of a third.

To view these options, and how to submit your preference, please pop into the Hanmer Service Centre and Library to collect a hard copy, or visit the Hurunui District Council website:

ACCOUNT OF A VISIT TO THE HANMER PLAINS AND HOT SPRINGS DURING MAY 1889

Marion Bridge, (born 1856) was the wife of Charles Hastings Bridge (later Sir) a Government surveyor and town planner who was based in Christchurch. Mrs Bridge left a vivid hand-written account of many of the journeys she made with her husband.

On the 30th April Hastings and I left Christchurch by the morning train for Culverden, en route for the hot springs. Mr H P Hill and Mr P Campbell both were of our party and remained with us about ten days. After lunch at the railway terminus we proceeded on our journey in Mr Derrett's new dray which he always drives himself, and which was put on for our special convenience. The day was bleak - wind piercing - and we were rather overcrowded, so that we could not admire the scenery which requires sunshine to highlight itself — but which now looked rather gloomy and desolate. We arrived at Jollies Pass Hotel a half past five, cold and weary and happy for the blazing logs in the open fireplaces and a substantial tea. Next morning began our course of bathes — and with great curiosity we drove down to the springs. These are eight or nine in number that is, there are so many separate pools enclosed in a reserve of some acres in extent. As you approach, the peculiar mineral gases assert their presence strongly and the steam is seen ascending from the pools. The grounds are nicely planted with valuable trees and shrubs but their growth is slow owing to the exposed situation and the cold, cutting wind that blows straight from the snow-clad hills.

There are two bath houses, one contains eight baths, the other four, each in separate rooms. The caretaker is a delicate looking man. He keeps well out of sight and the assistant, a ruddy, robust young fellow comes forward to keep up the credit of the place, as certainly his chief looks like a warning instead of an encouragement.

In answer to searching enquiries, we elicited that they seldom use the baths themselves after the well known precedent. The assistant told us that once in two months he took one and he always felt very weak after it.

There is a splendid swimming bath in the grounds, warm water and plenty of it. It is fenced around with high galvanised iron.

The use of this bath costs 6d. - the others costs one shilling each or six for four shillings. Hastings takes one bath daily and enjoys it, he eats well and is in excellent spirits. Mr Hill had begun to get over his rheumatism before coming here, but does not sleep so well. He takes one bath daily. Mr Campbell is in perfect health and refuses to endanger it by trying the treatment.

I had been so unwell before that, I could not judge of the results of the baths, until toward the end of the month's stay when I certainly improved and both ate and slept better. The foot was in a sore, swollen state after wearing a stiff bandage so long. I used to hold it under the taps while the bath was filling.

It is a delightfully new sensation to have absolutely as much water as you want — of a pleasant heat which can be maintained steadily. The temperature of the two pools which are connected with the bath house is respectively 119°F and 109°F. This water is mixed in the pipes so the heat in the baths is about 115°F. There is a cold water tap as well so you can have any lower temperature you want. There is also a shower apparatus attached to every bathroom and it is also considered advisable to end the daily bath with that. It is said the hot water never gives a cold, no matter what the outside air is like and we certainly proved the truth of that fact ourselves as we constantly drove back and forwards in bitterly cold, strong winds without suffering in any way.

I took the baths daily and always felt very faint and exhausted while in the water and for some time after but in the end derived great advantage. An aid to such a desirable end must certainly be the bracing air, higher elevation, freedom from outside worries of any sort and the regular drives in the open air to and fro the baths.

There is only a mail twice a week and no telegraph station within 25 miles, a paradise for tired out business people. I could not ascertain the exact elevation of Jollies Pass Hotel. But it is several hundred feet above Christchurch and sea level. Without being pretty, the scenery is interesting — a wide plain though which the Hanmer River runs and in which Mr Low's station St Helens, the hotel and baths are situated in hills encircling the basin, and a road over Jollies Pass, once a main road, leads to several back country station and into the interior of the Nelson province. This district derived the additional interest from the severe earthquake shocks of last year (1888), the basin being apparently a centre of energy. St Helens Station suffered severely and heavy chimneys were thrown down. Woodbank Station in close vicinity was wrecked as were Glen Wye, further up the Waiiau Gorge - and many other homesteads.

We were sufficiently comfortable at the hotel, paid six shillings a day each. The springs are two and three quarter miles away and a trap and horse are provided by the hotel people to convey you backwards and forwards free of charge. This is also done at the boarding house at Jack's Pass which is a mile and a half on the other side of the baths. The charge there is five shillings a day and I believe it is equally comfortable.

Many people derive a great benefit from a visit to the springs, chiefly those suffering from rheumatism, gout, kidney and skin diseases, sleeplessness, neuralgia etc etc while for those who simply require rest and change with perfect quiet, it is very desirable. Return tickets per rail and coach, available for one month are issued weekly for thirty shillings.

Church Services @ Epiphany – Anglican Church (until further notice)

In order to meet the government rules under the Orange setting of covid guidelines (which are stricter than in Level 2) from Sunday 12th December all church services will be open to those who are double vaccinated. If you have been unable to download your vaccine passport as proof of this, please contact one of us for help. There will be ways we can accommodate locals as these matters work out. For those who will be unable to attend because of this, we hope to have all services live streamed and will send out details about this when they are available.
