IN AN EMERGENCY DIAL 111

cost-cutting food hacks from older generations

With the cost of just about everything soaring, we're all looking to be thriftier in the kitchen. Thankfully, there are a multitude of hacks to save money, from buying in bulk to saving vegetable scraps for stock. Mostly, they're common-sense practices that were second nature to previous generations.

The decline of kitchen thriftiness has coincided with the rise of supermarkets and convenience foods: ready meals, grated cheese, pre-chopped vegetables. Wonderful in many ways, but it can encourage a lax attitude.

Our mothers and grandmothers knew how to eke out a small budget to feed a family, Given a chicken or a fish, they would have simply rolled up their sleeves and got on with eviscerating or filleting it. It mightn't have been perfect but they just did it in their pragmatic way.

As prices continue upwards, now is the time to unearth those long-forgotten skills.

1. Be sensible with best-before dates

The date only refers to quality, not safety and, as Allen writes, the dates have "undermined our confidence and ability to judge for ourselves when food is safe to eat". Yoghurt past its best-before date, for example, can be used in baking or for a marinade.

2. Make your own butter

Making butter at home is quick, easy and thrifty. Simply buy double cream, whisk in a stand mixer for five minutes and it'll separate into butter and buttermilk after about 10 minutes. 600ml of cream makes about 250g of butter, while the buttermilk can be used for baking, pancakes or marinating meat.

3. Buy meat on the bone

Meat on the bone tends to be cheaper than fillets and is much tastier, says recipe writer Silvana Franco. "A couple of lamb chops or pork ribs in tomato sauce for pasta will get far tastier results than using mince or cubed meat. The meat will stay juicier." If you want boneless, remove the bone yourself: chicken thighs are much cheaper this way and the bones can be used for stock.

4. Use meat sparingly

Reducing meat consumption will help lower the food budget, but you don't have to cut it out completely. A couple of rashers of chopped-up smoky bacon can flavour a stew, a few slices of chorizo work wonders on a tin of white beans and cheap offal such as chicken liver adds depth of flavour to a pasta sauce.

5. Be precious with leftovers

Thriftiness relies on squeezing out the value in every ingredient. Patrick Withington, head chef at Erst in Manchester, keeps leftover meat fat, drizzles beef dripping over flatbreads and adds pan juices from a roast chicken to lemon and mustard dressing for a warm chicken salad with olives, capers and rocket. Neil Campbell, head chef of Rovi in London, uses chicken or bacon fat instead of oil in soups or stews.

Roberta Hall-McCarron of the Little Chartroom and Eleanore in Edinburgh always has puff pastry in the freezer for a galette made from leftovers. "I put a layer of cream cheese on the base of the pastry then add whatever meat or veg I have. Fold the edges and bake until the pastry is golden."

6. Dig out your pressure cooker

With energy costs up, cutting cooking times is crucial, too. Pressure cookers can cut cooking times by up to 75 per cent and some electric versions use 70 per cent less energy. "They retain so much more flavour and nutrients as nothing evaporates in the cooking process," says Farokh Talati, head chef of St John Bread and Wine in London. "I use mine for curries, dals, potatoes, whole chickens, soups, braises, pork joints, stocks, steamed puddings. The list is endless."

7. Freeze on-the-turn vegetables

Vegetables are the food item most likely to be thrown away. Aktar Islam, chef-patron at Opheem in Birmingham, recommends judicious use of the freezer. Vegetables on the cusp should be blanched briefly in boiling water, quickly submerged in ice water, then frozen in air-tight containers. "My favourite way to use up various frozen veg is in a biryani," says Islam. Herbs freeze well, too.

Our Wellington correspondent telegraphs that Mr Meredith has been interesting himself in the matter of the production of a hand-book to the Hanmer Springs, and has interviewed the Minister of Lands on the subject. He suggested that the publication, which is to be illustrated by photographs of the springs, and of the scenery in the vicinity, should contain a description of the springs, an analysis of the waters, and include personal testimonies to their curative The usual information contained powers. in such publications as to accommodation and routes should also be included. Such a guide, he said, would largely increase the number of visitors to the springs. The Minister, favourably entertained Mr Meredith's proposal, and promised that such a book would be compiled and every endeavour made to have it ready in time for the approaching season.

Not For The Disabled

The BNZ doesn't seem too keen on enhancing its reputation in Hanmer Springs. Firstly, they decided to close down their branch, then they sent a weekly (?) mobile banking unit who were not available for mundane matters (such as mobile banking). This also quietly disappeared.

Now they have managed to excel themselves and make financial dealings even more perilously impossible by shrinking the size of their ATM and nudging it up a couple of feet

— thus making it conveniently out of reach for anybody who is either in a wheelchair or a mobility scooter.

The Pinkie is pleased to report it was able to offer serious weight to anchor a lady's wheel chair while she tried to lever herself upward in an attempt to withdraw some funds. Sadly, the attempt (s) were unsuccessful and she was led to the Four Square check out to enlist their aid.

The Pinkie will offer a prize for someone to suggest how to solve this problem.

We thought perhaps a ladder, but that would need someone to hold it. Or perhaps a wheelchair parking bay which can be elevated to perfect withdrawal height. Or perhaps a rope net? Or an elevator?

We could ask the BNZ to be contest sponsors but they are a bit short themselves with a net profit only increased by $560 million or 74% to $1.32 billion last year - and after all they are Australian so we can't expect them to be splashing the cash around over here.

The Pinkie has a series of photos of the green - right through from the original rubber surface, all the preparation, the first attempt at a green, then the destruction by wind and hopefully this time the final laying of the green

Margaret's Dolls are on display in the ACAC (Library) Gallery for the month of November

Lan

From Wood to Celluloid to Porcelain and finally to Fabric

Margaret Thompson

My earliest memory of a doll was a wooden peg. The round headed peg which had no facial features. I have memories of being able to make her clothes under mother's supervision. When the shape of the peg changed to a flat sided top the doll could have a face, but somehow that didn't matter. On my 8th birthday I was given, a peg, a pipe cleaner, domes, wool, needle and thread plus a piece of fabric from an old dress and told to make a peg doll.

My second doll was a celluloid kewpie with moveable arms, cute but not quite the appeal of the peg. As years went by and dolls were packed into boxes and destined for the attic or the back of the wardrobe they soon became memories.

It wasn't until the early 1990's, an advert in the local Waiau news sheet was for Porcelain doll making classes in Hanmer Springs tutored by Mona Bailey, that the interest in dolls resurfaced. With a friend, we signed up, even though neither of us knew anything about porcelain. Mona's passion was modern reproduction baby, child and adult dolls. Her classes also included Polymer Clay figures and teddy bears. Several modern dolls later my interest turned to antique reproduction. With Mona's > guidance, I made my first German Bru 15. Mona then introduced me to a master doll crafter living in West Melton, who specialised in Antique Reproduction. This was a whole new level of doll making. After making several, Bru 12, my final challenge was the reproduction of the French Jumeau - a picture perfect doll for the fashion era of the 1800's.

Sadly classes When the family moved North, I found myself in the dollmaker's dilemma, known as the "Undressed Syndrome", many dolls made it not many dressed, which I am still in.

In 2002 I was given a couple of pages from a magazine promoting a fabric doll, with pattern and instructions for the "Social Worker". I found this craft a lot of fun and challenging. One you can extend your imagination with in the sculpting of features and dressing....

Athletics

On Monday, the whole school had an athletics day. If we placed 1st or 2nd, we would go to Hurunui zones. Hurunui zones is an event where the 1st and 2nd placed people from every school will come to vs other schools. If you win that you go to Canterburys! Noah, Alfie, Jamie, Macey, Madi, Hayley, Ben, Marley, Blake, Amelia N, Amelia S, Preeti, & Charlie Are going as year 7&8 representatives; and Rosie, Charlotte, Waitapu, Bella, Theo, Cooper, & Daniel are going to Hurunui zones to represent year 5&6s! Bella, Lillie, Jamilah, Archie, Timmy, Anika, Grace, Austin, Harrison, and Daniel are the year 4 representatives. The year 4's are the youngest people to be able to go to Hurunuis.

The year 7&8's started the day off with long distance, The year 6 & 5's did it next, "Year 5 boys line up!" called Mr Shannon. Then he called up the year 5 girls, year 6 girls, and lastly the year 6 boys. "3..2...1..GO!" We all sprinted down the track but then slowed down, trying to pace ourselves so we wouldn't waste our energy.

Shot Put

The first event the year 5&6's did was shot put. We had to do it in age, gender, and alphabetical order. Year 5 girls, year 5 boys, year 6 boys, then year 6 girls. There were many good throws and we tried our best...." 1st is Waitapu, 2nd Bella, And third is Sharnie.

Hammer Springs School Journalist: Amelia Saric & Sharnie Inglis. Writers: Sharnie Inglis, Lillie Wilson, Anika Duncan, Jamilah Alrousan & Amelia Saric.

Discus

Next, we had discus we had to throw 750 grams. It was difficult to put our hands around the discussion because they were so wide. The biggest throw in year 5&6 was Charlotte and the biggest throw in year 7&8 was Noah.

Long jump

After morning tea year 5 & 6s had long jump and year 7 & 8s had high jump! Long jump was one of the hardest sports because you couldn't train to get better, unlike shot put or discus. But It's just skill so the year 6 winner was Rosie.

High jump

Meanwhile, the year 7 & 8s were preparing for the high jump. The top three year 7 girls were Amelia Saric, Charlie Bryant, and Amelia Nelson, Amelia Saric was the first one to jump out of the top three and she made it. Charlie was next, sadly she and Amelia N didn't make it up to 1.20m but Amelia Saric did. Amelia was the winner!

Sprints

The whole school lined up to do sprints. It went to year 1 boys, year 2 boys, year 1 girls, and year 2 girls. That process carried on until there was the preschool race, and the adult races. The home and school gifted us ice blocks for our hard work! Every year we get ice blocks and it's the year 6's and 7's favourite part!

GUMBOOT FRIDAY

By Amelia Nelson

On Friday 4th of November everybody at school who brought a coin was able to wear gumboots and mufti to school for gumboot Friday. The purpose of gumboot friday is for the charity "I Am Hope" to raise money to enable free counseling for under 25 year olds. I Am Hope aims to promote positive change around mental health in New Zealand particularly for young people.

For the Gumboot Day at school we got to do some fun gumboot games running around in the field. We played archery using gumboots as our arrows trying to hit a yellow bullseye.

We did long jump in our gumboots, that was harder than you would think.

We played a game of Rob the Gumboot where we had to steal other people's gumboots to get as many as we could.

To finish we did a gumboot relay! We all had to shuttle run with Batons up and down the track.

The Medal positions were; Mrs Hay; Gold Ms Billclough; Silver Mr Davies; Broze Mr McBride; Wood. Our school raised approximately $200 for I Am Hope. It has been a fun day to raise funds to support kids' mental health.

Hanmer School Mural

In Piwakawaka, we started sketching designs for our new mural in class. Our new mural will be located outside of Hanmer Springs School, near the office. Beforehand there was a crying dragon with a bunny, it wasn't very appealing and the paint was peeling off. The mural was a very old piece of art and with Mr McBride being our principal, things needed to change.

Lilly Wilson and Mr Davies applied for money from the Arts council, they had Covid at Easter 2022 and asked for the money on Zoom. Everything turned out great and we were given a grant to complete the Mural.

Kophie arrived on Tuesday 1st November and quickly started painting using a combination of spray and brush paints. By the afternoon of the 2nd she had beaten the bad weather and managed to finish. The Values birds of Korimako, Piwakawaka, Tui, Kereru and NZ Falcon are incorporated in the painting. Kophie is one of the best artists in Christchurch and we were very lucky to get her to paint our school.

Most of the students in the school think they can see themselves in the mural. The parents love it too.

Only official refuse and recycling bags will be collected; these can be purchased from Hanmer Springs Service Station and the library.
