To Fly Or Not

The following communication was received by The Pinkie during the week:

Comment or Message

'From the latest Pinkie' quote 'In other news, a small group of people who have taken it on themselves to object to the proposed Conical Hill FlyRide, will get their day in court on the 27th of February' end quote.

I would have thought that the 'Pinkies' view would be a little more accurate and neutral. The appeal by FOCH represents over 100 individuals and the majority of the submitters the vast majority of which were opposed to the submission. You should dig a little deeper maybe and offer a balanced view.

Gavin Martin

Response

Thank you to Mr Martin for pointing out my shortcomings in failing to agree with him and the tactics he has been employing. This is the first time it has been pointed out to me that I must be neutral. Neutrality is for the weak and I have no responsibility whatsoever to be dispassionate.

The Pinkie likes to represent the views of everyone in Hanmer not just those who live at the bottom of Conical Hill accosting and annoying tourists with their attitude. (The Pinkie has received direct complaints about these tactics but preferred to refer them to the relevant authorities).

I was born here over 75 years ago and Conical Hill has always been a part of my life and I am neither strongly for, nor strongly opposed to the FlyRide. I am against people twisting facts and don't support that in any form - Mr Martin's claim that his group represents over 100 people is completely unsubstantiated and does not relate to the number of submitters (there were actually 14, several of whom were in favour of the FlyRide). Any proportion of 14 does not make up the 'vast majority' nor the hundred plus Mr Martin claims.

I am certainly dead against the few trying to force their opinions on the majority. I would refer him back to the quote which meets so strongly with his disapproval - what is it that is not true about the fact that this group has taken it upon themselves to object and will have their day in court? Nothing!

It must be the word 'small' that upsets him. So, Mr Martin, neither your tactics nor your twisting of the facts is going to motivate me to take up the cudgels on your behalf.

And digging a little deeper (as you request), we checked with other members of your FOCH group who give us a greatly reduced set of figures.

I am a great believer that the truth will prevail.

Ed.

OTHER NEWS

Pools

In our news of the pools last week we neglected to mention summer and winter hours.

General Manager, Graeme Abbot told us that the pool's management will be endeavouring to maintain the later summer closing time as long as it is practicable.

Graeme said they are aware of the fact that people want to maintain the later closing time as long as possible. The problem they are facing, he told us, is that they did a great job of hiring before the summer season and have enjoyed a very high standard throughout, but with a lack of travellers, many of those young people were of necessity hired locally and now they are returning to university and colleges and so there will be quite an exodus of staff.

They have been trying hard to recruit new people to replace them, but as everyone knows, it is difficult to find workers these days.

Horse sale

The Pinkie had every intention of attending the St James horse sale this past weekend, however, even the best ideas went astray when one of our kind and considerate visitors pulled out from the kerb near the Adventure centre and knocked your editor on his arse in the middle of the street. This lovely chap pulled out quickly without a signal and nor even a glance in the mirror, then got abusive because

I didn't "look where I was going".

So, no horse pictures, but thanks for asking, both scooter and rider are doing well. The most annoying this was he called me an old and if anything riles me it is being called old

Chicken Stock

This is an intense, lovely chicken stock full of deep flavours and provides a perfect base for soup. Once cooled, freeze the stock in 500 gram containers.

INGREDIENTS

Yield: About 6 quarts

2 kg raw chicken bones
6 litres water
2 onions, unpeeled, quartered
2 carrots, peeled and halved crosswise
2 celery stalks, halved crosswise
1 teaspoon black peppercorns
2 bay leaves
4 thyme sprigs
5 parsley sprigs (or 10 stems)
1 tablespoon white-wine vinegar

METHOD

Step 1

Put everything but the vinegar in a large stockpot. Bring the stock to a boil over high heat, then turn down to a simmer.

Step 2

Skim off any foam that rises to the surface. Add the vinegar. (It helps draw out nutrients and minerals from the bones into the stock.)

Step 3

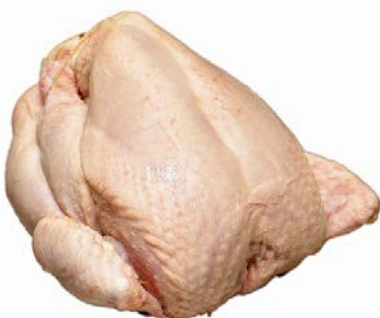

Simmer the stock for 6 to 8 hours, covered, keeping an eye on it to make sure it stays at a simmer.

Step 4

Strain the stock through a fine-meshed sieve. Let cool.

Step 5

Scrape the fat that rises to the top. (Save it in the fridge or freezer for another purpose.) Refrigerate for up to 5 days, or freeze for several months.

Gazpacho

INGREDIENTS

Yield: 8 to 12 servings, about 1 litre

About 1 kg ripe red tomatoes, cored and roughly cut into chunks

1 green pepper or another long, cored, seeded and roughly cut into chunks

1 Telegraph cucumber, about 8-12 inches long, peeled, seeded and roughly cut into chunks

1 small mild onion (white or red), peeled and roughly cut into chunks

2 cloves garlic

2 teaspoons sherry vinegar, more to taste

Salt

½cup extra-virgin olive oil, more to taste, plus more for drizzling

PREPARATION

Step 1

Combine tomatoes, pepper, cucumber, onion and garlic in a blender or, if using a hand blender, in a deep bowl. (If necessary, work in batches.) Blend at high speed until very smooth, at least 2 minutes, pausing occasionally to scrape down the sides with a rubber spatula.

Step 2

With the motor running, add the vinegar and 2 teaspoons salt. Slowly drizzle in the olive oil. The mixture will turn bright orange or dark pink and become smooth and emulsified, like a salad dressing. If it still seems watery, drizzle in more olive oil until texture is creamy.

Step 3

Strain the mixture through a strainer or a food mill, pushing all the liquid through with a spatula or the back of a ladle. Discard the solids. Transfer to a large pitcher (preferably glass) and chill until very cold, at least 6 hours or overnight.

Step 4

Before serving, adjust the seasonings with salt and vinegar. If soup is very thick, stir in a few tablespoons ice water. Serve in glasses, over ice if desired, or in a bowl. A few drops of olive oil on top are a nice touch. It is a great combination of flavours and textures if you serve it with home-made croutons fried in olive oil and garlic

Mt Lyford's Rodin Buys UK Racing Team

Rodin Cars, based near Mt Lyford, is now the majority shareholder of UK-based Carlin Motorsport.

Trevor and Stephanie Carlin will continue to lead the racing team, which will race under the new name of Rodin Carlin.

Rodin Cars founder David Dicker says Carlin Motorsport and Rodin Cars share the same passion for fast race cars.

"Trevor Carlin and I have an obsession with performance and competition that will cement the place of the new Rodin Carlin team at the front in the coming seasons."

UK-based team Carlin has been a force in junior motorsport since its inception in 1999. Race programmes in championships such as F4, F3, F2, Indy Lights, INDYCAR, ELMS and Asian Le Man Series has seen the team claim over 470 race victories, 30 championship titles and helped promote over 30 drivers to F1.

In 2022, Rodin Cars sponsored Carlin F2 and F4 race winners, young Kiwis Liam Lawson and Louis Sharp.

"We've been really impressed during the past season with Carlin and the success Liam and Louis have enjoyed. We have seen first-hand what the team can achieve, and we're excited about building on this incredible platform," says David.

David hopes Rodin Carlin will provide more opportunities for young kiwi drivers to work their way up to the top level.

"Liam and Louis have shown what can be achieved driving with Carlin. If they've got the talent, I am sure there will be more young Kiwi drivers who will follow in their footsteps and drive at the top level for Rodin Carlin."

Trevor says the investment will boost the British team's performance ambitions on track and further strengthen the company's business foundations.

"We're extremely excited to begin this new era as Rodin Carlin and continue our race and championship-winning story," says Trevor.

"David shares our vision of becoming the front-running team in every championship in which we compete and I'm thrilled to be on this journey alongside such an innovative company as Rodin Cars."

Focusing on the FIA ladder of F4 British Championship, FIA F3 and FIA F2 along with the British GB3 Championship, Rodin Carlin will expand in 2023 to incorporate F1 Academy and Spanish F4. The reinvigorated team will compete in several championships from the bottom to the top of the junior motorsport ladder.

Kilowatts

If you add up all the energy America (2nd to China in total) uses in a year—to produce electricity and also to perform the many tasks that have yet to be electrified, like driving and flying and making concrete—and you divide that by the total number of Americans, the result is per-capita consumption. The figure comes to about eighty thousand kilowatt hours.

Toss in the energy used to manufacture the goods imported into the U.S., and the number rises to almost a hundred thousand kilowatt hours.

To put this in terms of power, Americans are consuming roughly eleven thousand watts every second of every day. A string of incandescent Christmas lights uses about forty watts. It's as if each of us had two hundred and seventy-five of these strings draped around our homes, burning 24/7.

Owing to this every-day-is-Christmas level of consumption, annual emissions in the U.S. run to sixteen metric tons of CO₂ per person.

Americans don't have the world's highest per-capita emissions—that dubious honour goes to Kuwaitis and Qataris—but the USA is up there. Per-capita consumption in Thailand (23rd) and Argentina (30th) runs to around two and a half thousand watts and emissions to around four tons. Ugandans and Ethiopians use a hundred watts and emit a tenth of a ton. Somalis consume a mere thirty watts and emit just forty kilograms.

This means that an American household of four is responsible for the same emissions as sixteen Argentineans, six hundred Ugandans, or a Somali village of sixteen hundred.

(New Zealand comes in 55th place among consumption per capita per country)

These figures rarely feature in conversations about climate change; they were hardly mentioned, for instance, in the debate over the Inflation Reduction Act (legislation that Biden is trying to pass through the House)

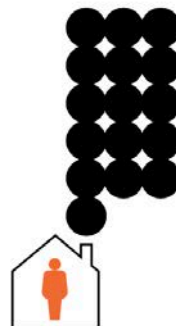

But to the world's low-consuming countries the inequities are impossible to ignore. They represent yet another way the Global North has exploited the Global South; call it atmospheric imperialism.

"These disparities chart the rise of developed countries at the expense of others," Mohamed Adow, the director of Power Shift Africa, a Nairobi-based think tank, has written. "The history of climate change is one of compounding injustices."

Annual emissions in the U.S. run to roughly sixteen metric tons of carbon dioxide per capita. Lower-consuming countries emit a fraction of that amount.

● = 1 ton in yearly emissions

United States
American emissions are about 16 tons per capita.

Argentina
Argentinean emissions are about 4 tons per capita.

Uganda
Ugandan emissions are 0.1 tons per capita

It's time for new PM to rescue water reforms, says Mayor Black

The signal from Prime Minister Chris Hipkins that the proposed Three Waters reform will be reviewed, has been welcomed by Hurunui District's Mayor Marie Black.

Hurunui District Council is one of the 30 councils to join Communities 4 Local Democracy He hāpori mō te Manapori (C4LD), collectively representing more than a million New Zealanders.

All members of C4LD are calling on the new Prime Minister to take a fresh look at the government's model for water reform and working with them to find a model that works for local communities.

Mayor Black said this is a positive opportunity for Prime Minister Hipkins to deliver on government aims for three waters while bringing districts like Hurunui with him.

"Keeping the control of water service delivery in the hands of local communities is a major collective aim for all councils represented by C4LD," said Mayor Black.

It is a year now since C4LD presented to the Ministerial Working Party with its credible Reform alternatives, highlighting the flaws in the government's proposed model.

"It is not too late to rescue this reform, all that needs to happen is for the government to place some trust in local government, and listen to what we have to say," said Mayor Black.

Manawatu District Mayor and C4LD Chair Helen Worboys said the detailed proposals C4LD has brought to the table enable the government to deliver on all its aims, create opportunities for strong and lasting partnerships and deliver safe, sustainable and affordable water services for all New Zealanders.

She added that local councils should be given the opportunity to use their wealth of knowledge to deliver better alternatives to the current proposal, which independent analysis shows has a significant number of flaws and in many areas will deliver worse outcomes than the current system. Better alternatives will in turn enable building on existing partnerships, the continuation of local influence and community property rights, and forging new relationships with Mana Whenua at a local level.

"We're confident that our plans are in line with what the majority of New Zealanders want. We've presented a reform framework that is directly supported by nearly half of councils in New Zealand and is aligned with the views of the majority of others," said Mayor Worboys.

C4LD's 10 point proposal for compromise - supported by all members - reads:

1. Foundation principle - community property rights in Three Waters assets are to be both respected and meaningful.
2. The Government should agree to amend its current reform process and allow time for the revised approach to be reflected in legislation.
3. With respect to investment decision-making, asset owners should actively seek to initiate authentic discussions with mana whenua at a local level that acknowledge and enable Te Tiriti based pathways at a local and regional level.
4. In return, asset owners agree to commit to meeting health and environmental standards, once known, within an appropriate time frame.
5. The regulatory framework should specify a "backstop" provision that identifies a set of circumstances which would justify future Crown intervention if an asset owner was not making acceptable progress towards meeting those regulatory requirements.
6. Progress should be reported on annually by asset owners and be benchmarked across the sector.
7. To further incentivise sector progress, a formal process might be established that requires an asset owner to prepare a plan that would map out the steps it proposes to take to meet the required standards in a financially viable and sustainable manner.
8. A process to finance and allocate funds to areas that will require financial assistance be designed that is national in application and independently administered accordingly to objective and transparent criteria.
9. This subsidy scheme will be designed to meet investment shortfalls until such time as sufficient progress has been made. At which point the scheme will cease and asset owners will finance matters on a business-as-usual approach.
10. A sector-wide sector best-practice improvement process be created and membership made compulsory. (In a similar manner used to implement successfully the One Network Road Classification Framework and now One Network Framework in the road infrastructure area, and governed by Waka Kotahi and the Local Government Sector.)

Hanmer Springs Village

A great place to work.

A great place to retire.

A great place to think.

A great place to visit.

There is a very attractive cemetery.

Nice and cold in the winter.

Nice and warm in the summer.

Climate averages of:

- 1,234 mm of rain (48.6 inches).

- 2,142 hours of sunshine.

Temperature 7.6°C (45.7°F).

Other physical features:

- Height above sea level 338m (1,109feet).
- Distance from Christchurch 133.2km 1(hour 45 minutes).

Population (June 2022) - ,1 120.

- Median age 43.6 (New Zealand around 38).
- Primary school (roll 101).
- New house build consents a year - 30 to 35.
- Average house and section value $650,000 - 850,000
- Hot pools owned by the council = 22 pools and four water slides and can cope with 5,000 people a day.

Possible overall risks of the village economy:

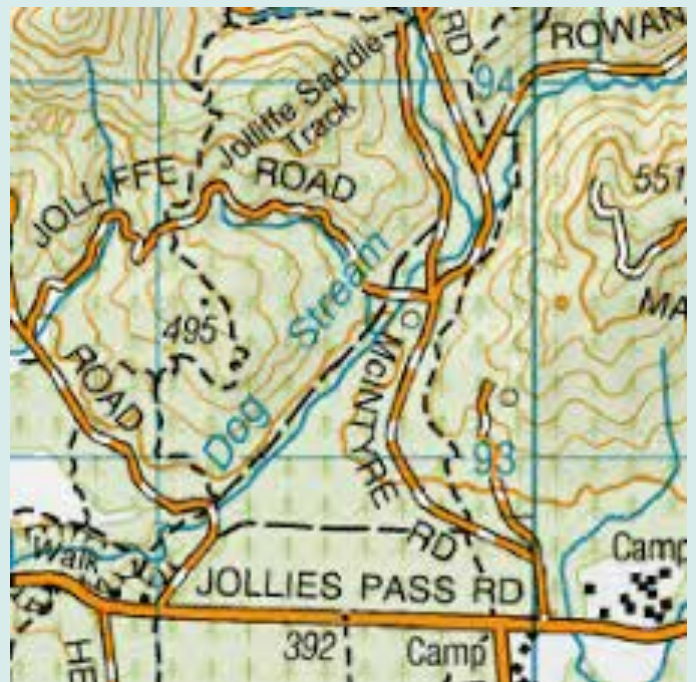

- Fire - there is a lot of forestry surrounding Hanmer Springs.

Major problem with the pools complex in some form.

- Major problem with the bridge in some form.

Possible future issues/developments:

- Picture theatre.
- Ice skating rink.
- Worker accommodation.
- Retirement/rest home complex.
- The 'rule of 72' would suggest that fi the permanent population of Hanmer Springs increased by, say, 40 people a year, that this would then mean the current population may double in 20 years' time.

Please Note that HDC garbage & recycling bags are no longer available from the Four Square supermarket . Henceforth, bags will only be available from Hanmer Springs Service Station, the library , The Log Cabin and Super Liquor

NEW MANAGEMENT

Hello Hanmer!

We are Rick and Sarah, we have recently moved to beautiful Hanmer Springs from Nelson with our kids spider hunter Tyler and horse loving Maddie.

Our goal is to re open Boulder Burgers and have it operating to it's full potential on behalf of Peter and Cherie.

Sarah has over 20 years experience in the food industry, Sarah previously owned a Fish and Chip in Nelson where Rick who's a qualified mechanic quickly learnt how to toss the tongs instead of spanners!

We will be working together to bring our new community and it's guests the best burgers ever!

We look forward to meeting all our new locals when we are up and running.
