Geens' Garden a Worthy Hanmer Representative in Hurunui Garden Festival

The sixth annual Hurunui Garden Festival is on again this year from 26th to 29th October. It showcases 18 spectacular gardens within the Hurunui, Hanmer Springs being represented again by Dot and John Geen's garden in Coleridge Street. Gardens range from Amberley, through the Waipara Gorge to Hawarden, Waikari, Culverden, Rotherham, Cheviot and Hanmer. If you are interested in visiting any or all of the garden we would suggest you pick up a copy of the Festival's comprehensive brochure or visit their website at www.hurunuigardenfestival.com through clicking on this link. It costs adults $10 to visit each garden and opening hours are from 9 am to 5 pm each day. The properties are arranged into 6 geographically based clusters making it easy to plan your visit to multiple destinations. Each garden is as diverse as the owners you will meet and displays their individual passions and their knowledge. Gardens range from the grand and formal to the smaller more intimate. The Pinkie and camera were given a sneak preview of the Geen's garden by Dot Geen, herself a passionate gardener with a great knowledge of what will and won't grow in Hanmer. A visit is highly recommended.

Hurunui District Council purchases balance of QMH site

The Hurunui District Council has worked with Te Rūnanga o Kaikōura and Ngāi Tahu Property to purchase 9 hectares of land in Hanmer Springs.

The land is part of the former Queen Mary Hospital site near the village's centre – the council already owns the other 5.1 hectares of the site.

Chief Executive Hamish Dobbie says the council was fortunate to work with Te Rūnanga o Kaikōura and Ngāi Tahu to secure the site.

“The crown had signalled its desire to sell the site. The iwi had first right to purchase the property but worked through a process with council enabling us to purchase it instead. This ensures it remained in public ownership.”

Mr Dobbie says the purchase is worth celebrating.

“This is 9 hectares of prime land in the centre of one of Hurunui's strategic tourism destinations, Hanmer Springs. Having ownership now enables us to control its future and ensure any future development adds to the character of the village and enhances the area's social, cultural, environmental and economic wellbeing.”

“We are extremely grateful to Ngāi Tahu Property and Te Rūnanga o Kaikōura for giving us this opportunity. It is a great outcome for the community.”

The purchase means the Hurunui District Council now owns all of the Queen Mary Hospital site. The other 5.1 hectares, which has three category 1 heritage buildings on it, was transferred to council ownership in 2010.

The council has announced plans to strengthen one of those buildings, the Soldiers' Block, and create a community centre, function space and Ngāi Tahu meeting house.

A future phase will see a world-class museum created to tell the wartime and medical stories of the building.

“Work on the first phase of that project's due to begin before the end of the year. The meeting house or whareni will showcase many artworks by iwi artists and give Ngāi Tahu a permanent presence in Hanmer Springs. We're excited by that, by this outcome and the opportunity to work together in the future,” says Mr Dobbie.

The newly-bought land includes a sizeable hospital building, four uninhabited houses, workshops and storage buildings along with auxiliary service buildings.

“These are all in various states of disrepair and have no heritage protections,” says Mr Dobbie.

The buildings' futures will likely be decided as the council develops a commercial master plan for the site.

“This master plan will, in time, allow for the careful development of commercial and residential activities and reserves on the site. We'll work carefully to ensure any development fits with the Queen Mary Hospital Heritage Reserve and Hanmer Springs Thermal Pools and Spa which sit adjacent to the site.”

“Having this land in council ownership gives us an exciting opportunity to further enhance Hanmer Springs' appeal to both residents and visitors. It's a special site and I'm in no doubt we can do something noteworthy with it that future generations will thank us for,” concludes Hamish Dobbie.

Thai noodles with egg ribbons

This Thai noodle stir-fry is the answer to the perpetual question – what's for dinner tonight? I know you have eggs in the fridge. I know you have a packet of dried noodles somewhere in the dark depths of your pantry. Use whatever (cook-able) vegetables you can find. And I think there's a strong chance you have everything you need for the sauce. (If not, get them once and make this

Ingredients

- 160g dried bean vermicelli noodles, soaked in boiling water for 5 minutes then drained (or noodles of your choice)
- 6 eggs
- 1 tsp salt
- 2 tbsp peanut oil (or other neutral oil)
- 1 onion, finely sliced
- 2 garlic cloves, finely chopped
- 1 red capsicum, cut into 7mm strips
- 1 bunch Chinese broccoli (gai laan; about 6 stems), cut into 10cm lengths, stems separated from leaves
- SAUCE
- 2 tbsp oyster sauce
- 2 tbsp fish sauce
- 2 tsp dark soy sauce
- 1 tbsp white sugar
- 1 tbsp peanut oil

Method

- Step 1
Whisk together eggs and salt. Heat 5 tablespoons of the oil in a 30cm nonstick frying pan over high heat. Pour in half the egg, swirl to spread, cook until surface is set, slide out onto cutting board. Repeat with another 5 tablespoons of oil and remaining egg. When cool enough to handle, roll up and slice into 1cm-wide strips – egg ribbons!
- Step 2
Heat the last 1 tablespoon of oil. Cook onion, garlic, capsicum and gai laan stems for 1 minute. Add gai laan leaves and toss for 1 minute. Add noodles then pour the sauce over. Toss for a good 2 minutes to allow the sauce to soak into the noodles and get a bit of caramelisation on them.
- Step 3
Finally, gently toss through the egg ribbons. Some will break – that's OK! Serve immediately.

Mexican Fish Stew

Everybody knows fish is good for you and we need to eat more of it. Here's an easy way to cook fish that's quick and cosy: in a chunky Mexican-inspired broth. The thing with fish stew is that it has to be quick to make – otherwise, you'll overcook the fish.

Ingredients

- 2 tbsp extra virgin olive oil
- 1 onion, finely diced
- 2 garlic cloves, finely chopped
- 2 tsp dried oregano
- 100g can of chipotles in adobo sauce
- 400g can crushed tomato
- 1 litre salt-reduced vegetable stock
- 1 tsp cooking salt
- 2 potatoes (300g each), peeled and cut into 1.2cm cubes
- 6 corn cobbettes (thaw if frozen)
- 400g can black beans, drained
- 2 x 300g snapper, barramundi or basa fillets, cut into 5cm pieces
- ½ cup roughly chopped coriander leaves, 1 tbsp lime juice (plus extra wedges to serve)

Method

- Step 1
Heat the olive oil in a large pot over medium-high heat. Add the onion, garlic, oregano and chipotles in adobo (chillies and sauce) and cook for 2 minutes while stirring.
- Step 2
Add tomato, stock and salt and bring to a simmer. Cook for 3 minutes, then blitz until smooth using a stick blender.
- Step 3
Add potato and corn to the sauce and simmer for 10 minutes.
- Step 4
Stir in the black beans.
- Step 5
Place the fish pieces on top of the sauce. Don't stir them in. Return the sauce to a simmer, cover with a lid and cook for 5 minutes.
- Step 6
Once the fish is cooked (check to see that it flakes), add the coriander and lime juice.
- Step 7
Gently push the fish under the sauce, then ladle into bowls, garnished with extra coriander leaves. Serve extra lime wedges alongside.

School Athletics Day.

At Hanmer Springs School it was athletics day on Wednesday. We had five stations, discus, high jump, long jump, shot put and long distance! The winner of discus was Remington who threw a whopping 20.10 metres! Marley won the high jump, he jumped 1.20 metres. The long jump winner was Blake who jumped 3 metres 94. The winner of the shot put was Waitapu who threw 7 metres. After lunch we had the sprint races. They were the best. In relays all houses competed against each other, Isobel house won and in second was Miromiro, in third place was Dunblane and in fourth place was Percival. Afterwards was the adults race. Then we got wicked ice blocks.

By Elosie and Jonty.

On a nice sunny Wednesday, Hanmer Springs School had their big Athletics day. We had shot put, discus, long distance run, sprints, long jump and high jump. We also had a sausage sizzle at lunch where you had to bring a gold coin donation to raise money for cerebral palsy. The event was well attended by parents and grandparents who were there to cheer on their kids. Everyone had to dress up in their house colours. The relay race was really cool. We raced in girls and boys years as well. The adults had a race too. We got ice blocks at the end.

Neihana's highlights

I liked that in discus I tried my best.

I liked the long jump because I tried my best and showed resilience.

I loved shot put because it was fun.

Bridie's highlights

I liked how everyone tried their best.

It was well attended by parents and grandparents.

It was a great event for fitness and having fun.

NZ Shake Out.

On Thursday we participated in the Great NZ Shake Out which is a NZ wide earthquake drill. We all dropped down in the turtle position or went under the tables in the turtle position holding one of the table legs with one hand and the other hand placed over our heads. When the teacher said it was okay to come out we carried on with our work. Because we live on an earthquake fault line it is important to practise drills.

Bikes.

Thanks to a funding grant that the school received from Te Korowai Whetu, we were able to purchase 10 brand new mountain bikes from Hanmer Adventure! We also used this funding to pay for our senior class to participate in the William Pike Challenge this year. Now we will be able to take full class mountain biking trips in the forest between the students that have their own bikes and the school fleet!

Disc Golf.

On Friday Mr McBride took the Year 8 students to Brooke Dawson reserve to play disc golf. Every Friday the Year 8s get to do one fun activity since it's their last term at Hanmer Springs School.

Letter from China. 996.

Our time in Hangzhou is coming to a close. The kindness and warmth and generosity is beyond belief. We will need to buy an extra suitcase for all the gifts. And each and every gift is sumptuously packed and with its own bag. Not good for the environment but often spectacular. I popped into an art shop the other day. Out came tea, then soup and an incredible omelette. After a calligraphy lesson I managed to escape. But it was charming and I was given a beautiful painting by the owner as I left.

The technology and speed of achievement in China is breathtaking. Without a doubt the UK is left behind the advancements made here. They have set their sights on out performing the USA and I am sure it won't be long.

I also have to say I am looking forward to getting off this frenetic roller coaster and relaxing in the mountains and rivers in Hanmer. The pace of life is exhilarating but equally exhausting. And so many people want a bit of us. You know I long for sofa, tv and a baked potato and cheese.

The workload and work rate here, for most is huge. There is very little home cooking with most eating out most of the time. Good meals on campus cost between $2.50 and $5. Most work a 996. 9am to 9pm 6 days a week. Many work more.

The rail network is fast, clean and efficient. We are travelling at over 300kmh and our 200km journey will be over in a flash. Trains are cheaper and more efficient than flying. Doesn't look like I will get on the 600kmh train.

The sheer volume of traffic is beyond imagination. 7 lane motorways in each direction and when a new road is needed there are two simple strategies. Firstly, huge underground tunnels are one option. The other option to build above. In some places there are 6 lane each way motorways with not one but two motorways tiered above. Up to 18 lanes travelling in each direction. Then each lane is numbered because it is impossible to cross from left to right. So sometimes lanes 1&2 are to turn left, 3&4 straight on, 5 also left, 6&7 turn right. Each with their own overhead lights and generally respectful drivers.

Now we have a few quiet days alone in Shanghai on the Bund. A very European base and no lectures. We are overlooking a huge shopping street and there are restaurants on the 27th floor and roof top. This promises to be fun.

Family weddings and reunions soon.

Climate change and possible impacts for New Zealand

Researchers in New Zealand, and around the world, are beginning to understand the different ways our communities will be impacted by climate change. Some of the impacts are already clear, for example, sea-level rise and coastal erosion. Others are not so clear. It's important for us to look into the future so we can best prepare ourselves to respond to potential impacts.

People

The health of many New Zealanders will be affected by a changing climate.

Hotter temperatures and heatwaves may bring health issues for vulnerable groups, particularly the elderly and babies, as well as outdoor workers.

A warming climate may increase the likelihood of tropical diseases, such as dengue fever and malaria, reaching New Zealand. New Zealand is currently too cold for most of the mosquitoes and ticks that spread tropical diseases, however, as our climate warms they may be able to establish populations here.

Dangerous risks posed by more frequent and intense extreme weather events like flooding, storm surges, forest fires and ex-tropical cyclones are also likely to impact people's health.

We can also expect climate change to have a negative effect on many people's mental health. Some are already anxious about climate change and as impacts become more severe, anxieties may worsen.

Māori communities will be impacted and because many live close to the coast, infrastructure, as well as tapu places like burial grounds, are particularly at risk from sea-level rise and coastal erosion.

Species and ecosystems

Ecosystems are interconnected communities of different species (such as specific types of plants and animals). When one species is affected by a changing environment, all species within the ecosystem are likely to be affected.

For many species, climate change will affect their 'range'—the habitat in which they can comfortably live—and some species may be forced to move to find suitable habitats.

We are still learning about the ways New Zealand's ecosystems will be impacted by a changing climate. This section will explore some of the possible impacts in several New Zealand environments.

Alpine ecosystems

NIWA's End of Summer Snowline Survey has documented the retreat of New Zealand's glaciers and snowlines. As New Zealand's climate continues to warm, the amount of snow and ice on our mountains will continue to decrease.

Species living in alpine ecosystems, such as lizards and insects, have adapted to survive in cold and often freezing environments. Continued warming will cause snowlines to move upslope and we expect species living in these environments to also move upslope. This may cause a habitat 'squeeze' on alpine ecosystems.

We can also expect more pressure on alpine ecosystems from pest species such as rats and hedgehogs as warmer temperatures allow them to survive at higher elevations.

Coastal and marine environments

Our coasts and marine environments will face a range of challenges. Ocean acidification is one major process that will impact the balance of life in our oceans. Our oceans absorb more than a quarter of the CO<sub>2</sub> released into the atmosphere from human activities. This process causes oceans to become more acidic. Species that grow calcium carbonate shells – like plankton, molluscs and crustaceans—struggle to grow and maintain their shells when ocean waters become too acidic.

Rising seas and coastal erosion will impact all coastal species. These processes will create a habitat 'squeeze' between coastal ecosystems and developed land.

Finally, warmer waters and changing currents will impact oceanic productivity and the abundance of prey species like krill and plankton. These animals form the base of the food web so changes to them will have flow on effects for all other species. Warmer waters around New Zealand may also encourage more invasive species and diseases to establish here and spread.

Freshwater environments

We're still learning how freshwater environments will be impacted by climate change. We do know that water in our rivers, lakes, estuaries and wetlands will become warmer as air temperature increases. Warmer water temperatures will likely impact the range of many species, as well as nutrient cycling and primary productivity. Like with marine waters, as freshwater environments warm, we might see proliferation of invasive species such as water hyacinth.

Changes in rainfall and snow and ice cover will also impact the amount and seasonal timing of water entering and exiting freshwater environments. Finally, changing wind and temperature patterns may increase the likelihood of algal blooms in lakes.
